Read the following passage and answer questions 26-38

Jesse had always enjoyed music. Whenever the people in the village had a dance he used to stay up late and practice playing on the drums. He knew all the words to the songs the villagers sung and he liked singing them. You can imagine how pleased he was when he was chosen for his school choir. They practiced singing every week and after sometimes he was asked to sing some of the parts alone. He was very proud of himself.

One evening just as he was getting changed out to his school uniform, his friend Benjamin came around to his house and asked to see him. He informed him that they were trying to make money to buy a tent for camping. He also said that they were arranging a big concert and a band as well. Jesse went and sang at the scouts concert but what interested him more was one man playing a drum, another with a guitar and the third one with a mouth organ.

Jesse asked his teacher how he would make him asking of a whistle because he realised that singing with music instruments is more fun than singing without. The teacher advised him to use a hollow pipe like the piece of bamboo with holes cut in it. When he tried it did not produce any sound and so he gave up.

Read the following passage and answer questions 39-50

The police keep us safe on the streets and in our homes. They are trained to prevent people from breaking the laws and to arrest those who do so. Police officers also control crowds, direct traffic and give first aid to victims of accidents. They are expected to be ready to assist anyone in need of help. Their motto, "Utumishi kwa wote" is meant to show that they serve all.

There are both male and female police officers. They work together under the same working conditions. Most police officers wear uniform while at work.

Patrolling is one of the duties of the police. They may patrol on foot, horse back, bicycles or motorcycles, in motor cars even in aeroplanes and helicopters.

In addition to the normal work the police may have to do special duties. For example, police on patrol may have to look after lost children or stray dogs. Police officers with trained dogs may be set to control disorderly crowds or track criminals or prisoners who have run away. Police dogs are also used to search for hidden drugs.

Some police officers are given traffic control duties. They make sure that drivers do not exceed the specified speed limits and that they obey the traffic laws. They check to see that the vehicles are properly licensed and insured and that they are roadworthy. The traffic police also direct traffic at cross road. Police officers in boats help rescue people from drowning. The police also patrol national borders. When a crime has been committed the police carry out investigations. This is usually done by officers from Criminal Investigations Departments (C.I.D) who are attached to most large police stations. There are also police department which try to prevent the buying and selling illegal drugs.
