Read the following passage carefully and then answer questions 26 to 38

The King of Mandingo kingdom, Papa, had ruled justly since his crowning. Most, if not all, of his subjects agreed that Mandingo had never seen such development like that under his watch. At first, King Papa was solely focused on running affairs in his kingdom that he did not lend his ear to gossip. Like most men, however, the insistent praise eventually got his head and he began questioning the power of the creator. He became so conceited that he became drunk in his own power. Not even members of his council dared point out his folly. They were too scared of the powerful king.

Now, the king had a shy, but trust worthy squire named Pole. Every time the youth served him his favourite drink, he would mutter, “My king, everything God does is perfect. He never makes mistakes.” The now proud king began getting irked by Pole’s muttering, but did not act.

One day, the king and his squire were out hunting when a cornered Leopard charged at them. Master and servant managed to spear the animal to death, but that did not prevent his majesty from losing a finger to the beast. Furious and without showing a gratitude, the king yelled, If God was perfect, a good king such as I would not have lost a finger. To his surprise, Pole calmly asserted that despite everything, God is perfect and that he is never wrong. Outraged by the response, the king ordered the arrest of his servant.

While being taken to prison, Pole continued muttering that God was perfect and was never wrong.

Days went by and Pole was forgotten as the king’s pride continued to know no bounds. On one of his hunting escapades, the lone king fell into the hands of a savage tribe. It was customary for them to sacrifice strangers to their gods and they were about to do that before they noticed that their sacrifice was short one finger. Unfit to be offered to the gods, the shaken king was released.

Upon finding his way back to the palace, he ordered the release of Pole exclaiming, “My friend, God was really good to me. I was almost killed, but for lack of a finger, I was let go. I however, have a question; If God is so perfect, why did He allow me to throw you in the dungeon? To this Pole responded, “My king, if I had not been put in prison, I would have accompanied you for hunt and probably ended up a sacrifice because I have no missing finger.”

Everything God does is perfect, He is never wrong. We often complain about life, and the negative thing that happen to us; forgetting that everything happens for a purpose.

Read the passage below carefully and then answer questions 39 to 50.

Some people look down upon labour. They are ashamed to work in a field or carry a bundle from the market. They think it is humiliating to do such work which according to them, is best befitting to menials. Every child therefore should be trained side by side with his academic subjects in manual and domestic work, work that will make them perspire and understand what it is to labour. Those who have worked and perspired never regretted in life.

Whatever kind of work, it should be dignified. One kind of work should not be taken as more dignified. All work has the same end which is the improvement of existing order of things.

The story is told of a quarrel among different members of human body. Each complained that the stomach was not working but was getting all the food all the other members had worked for. One day they decided to teach the stomach a lesson. The hands complained of performing all the different tasks, the legs complained of carrying the body whenever it was required. The mouth complained it had to do the eating but stomach got all the food.

Finally they went on a strike against the stomach. But as a result the whole body became weak. The legs had no strength to walk and the hands were too weak to do anything. Later they realized the welfare of the whole body depended on each doing its function.

Similarly, in a home, institution or society there are various functions. Some may be more difficult than others or more important or seem nobler than others. But all are necessary in running of a home or a society. The father, the mother or the children have various duties to perform in a family. Only when each does his share of the work will there be co-ordination, harmony and progress. Work done by different members supplement each other.

The work of mechanics, farmers, priests, government officials, cooks etc. contribute to the welfare of the society. If any fails the society suffers.
