Soma habari zifuatazo kwa makini kisha ujibu maswali 31-40.

Kweli asiyesikia la mkuu huvunjika guu. Kimani mwana wa jirani yangu alikuwa na tabia nzuri. hata hivyo alipofika darasa la nane tabia zilibadilika. Alianza kuwa mtukutu kwa wazazi nao wakamwacha kufunzwa na ulimwengu. Kimani aliamua kwenda mjini Nairobi. Aliiba shilingi elfu moja za mamaye akang'oa nanga. Alizidi kuponda raha na vijana wa mjini.

Hata hivyo kila kitu kina mwisho. Mapema mwaka jana, kijana huyo alirudishwa nyumbani akiwa katika hali ya kusikitisha sana. Alikuwa na virusi vya ugonjwa wa ukimwi. Siku hizi maskani yake ni kitandani akiugua. Kila sehemu ya mwili wake humwuuma. Ikiwa si kikihozi kumsumbua ni kuendesha tumbo. Ugonjwa wake haujui dawa yoyote. ukweli ni kwamba kifo kinamkodolea macho sana.

Angeusikiliza ushauri wa wazazi wake, wakati huu asingekuwa akiugua. Angekuwa shuleni akielimika kama vijana wenzake.

The window of the pub exploded as a big stone hit it from outside. The men in the pub could hear more shouting and running out in the road. The policeman jumped up on a bench and looked out the window to see who it was. "I see no one!" he said. "It must be him!"

The owner was standing in front of the counter where Marvel was hiding. He looked at the broken window and then moved over to the two other men. The noise stopped "I need my stick," said the policeman, walking slowly to the door. "When he comes in, there will be no stopping him". "Think before you open that door," said the coach man, who was shaking with fear.

"Open the lock," said the man from America, "and if he comes in...." he showed them a gun in his hand. "You cannot do that," said the policeman. "You will kill him". "I know how you think about things like that in this country," said the man with the black moustache. "I do not plan to kill him. I will shoot his legs. Open the lock".

"Not with me standing between you and the door," said the owner, who was looking over the curtains. "Very well," said the man with the gun. He walked over and lifted the locking timber himself. The owner, policeman and each man were standing together now, looking at the door.

"Come in," the man with the black moustache said quietly his gun pointing at the door. The door did not open. For a long time the men waited. After sometime, another coach man opened the door and looked in. "I think he has left," he said. Marvel lifted his head from behind the counter and said. "He is looking for another way in. He is as smart as the devil. Are all the doors of the house locked?"

"Good God!" said the owner. "Close the doors!" He looked around himself, not knowing what to do. The door to the sitting room was behind the counter, and Marvel quickly locked it. "There is the back door and the door to my rooms. Oh no! The back door-" and he was quickly out of the drinking room. He returned carrying a sharp knife. "The back door was open," he said, his bottom lip dropping. "It is locked now, but we do not know if he is in the building. The workers in the cooking room do not think he could have come through to this part of the building: but the door through to the sitting room was open and they do not know about that."

Read the passage below and then answer questions 39-50.

I had now been in this country for two years and I used to attend the King's reception once or twice a week. There, I would often see him with the barber which was indeed to me at first, very terrible to behold as the razor the barber used was almost twice as long as an ordinary scythe. His majesty, according to the custom of the country, was only shaved twice a week. I once asked the barber to give me some of the suds or lather, out of which, I picked out forty or fifty pieces of hair. I then took a piece of fine wood and cut it like the back of a comb, making several holes in it at equal distances with a small needle that I got from Glumdalclitch. I fixed the pieces of hair artificially and made a comb for myself. I did this as my own comb was quite useless with all its broken teeth and I did not know anyone there who would be able to make me a new one.

The King, who delighted in music, held frequent concerts at court, which I was sometimes carried to. However, the noise was so great that I could hardly distinguish the different tunes. I am sure that even if all the drums and trumpets of an entire army were sounded together, it could not equal to the noise that I was made to listen to during the concerts.

During such concerts, I used to ask the people to place my box as far away as possible from where the performers sat. After that I would shut the doors and windows of my box and draw the curtains. Only after I did all this, did I find their music not so disagreeable. I still hoped to find a way home. When the King and Queen travelled to the South Coast, Glumdalclitch and I accompanied them. I wanted to see the Coast, something I hadn't seen in a long time.

When Glumdalclitch was ill, a servant boy tended to me. He carried me in a travel box and placed me on the beach, while he went in search of eggs. I looked sadily at the sea but remained in my box. I soon fell asleep. A little while later, I woke up to the sound of wings flapping. I felt my box being lifted in the air.
