I wanted to report what I had seen Jumba do but I feared the consequences. I was sure he would disapprove of it. So to be safe, I decided to remain silent. Jumba was my friend, yes, but he could suddenly turn wild, even without a proper reason. He was well-built and me, the opposite. You can guess the other reason for my choice of silence.

Pascal was known to be rough with children, especially rude ones. We had always stolen his sugarcane and a number of times, he actually met us chewing but just because he was not the only person who grew it or had no way of identifying cane stolen from his farm, Jumba always persuaded me not to fear. We harvested the sugarcane any time we wished, as long as one of us remained on the lookout in case he or any member of his family suddenly appeared.

On this particular day, we were on our second mission. The first one, done earlier in the day, had been successful and it is this success that drove us to return there that afternoon. We went right inside the farm and chose three good ones for each of us. Then we sneaked out and headed to our spot where we chewed it slowly, as we relived the past days. Upon finishing, we embarked on bird-hunting.

I was poor at bird-hunting and sincerely could not remember a day when I ever hit one, even a sick one! It therefore was not a surprise to me that I had very little interest in it but just to remain relevant with my friend, I always tried. He was a good shot and at times would even offer me one bird which I'd brag at home that I killed.

We had not killed any bird when this incident occurred. Jumba threw a stone at a dove that missed it by swerving suddenly. The stone went on to land on Pascal's head! The furious man, who was riding his bicycle on a path some distance away, fell off it and sustained bruises. I was both scared and shocked, not knowing how to react. Jumba, on the other hand, carefully melted away, leaving me to be caught.

I pleaded innocence for hours and was only saved by the fact that Pascal had actually seen a young man, according to him, in a blue-T-shirt run away. That man, I said, had not been with me and I had never even seen him. I decided to remain silent until I was released minutes later.

Read the passage below and then answer questions 39 to 50.

Ugali is arguably the most popular dish in Kenya and has been the staple food for most of our country's over forty-two ethnic communities. Also known as sembe, ngima, kuon or obusuma, ugali is rumoured to be the secret behind our country's award-winning athletes and powerful rugby players.

Preparation of ugali is a simple process. It only needs hot water and maize flour. One may also use flour derived from other grains except wheat. Depending on your taste, you may also add a little salt or margarine to the ugali so that its flavour can be improved. Despite its celebrity status, ugali's origin remains unknown. It is said that it was discovered many centuries ago by a woman who was preparing porridge but unconsciously put too much flour.

In the preparation process, you need to start by boiling water in an open pot. You then add flour from time to time as it boils and stir continuously until you achieve a solid cake. A special wooden stick (mwiko), is used for stirring. You must never leave ugali on the fire unattended to because it can burn.

It takes ten to twenty minutes to prepare a fully-cooked ugali. The ideal test of ugali's readiness involves hurling a steaming ball of the mash on a brick wall and it is deemed ready for consumption only if the ball sticks to the wall. This method was used in many homes but it is gradually losing its appeal as it's not only wasteful but has also resulted into minor accidents. Many mothers exclusively use their sense of smell and gut instincts to assess the readiness of ugali.

The preferred method of consumption is by use of fingers or a fork. However, care must be taken when using fingers to scoop hot ugali because it can stick very firmly to the skin and cause a lot of pain. There should be no hurry when eating hot ugali because it can cause untold pain in the throat. Chewing it well could help control the temperature as you eat.

Ideally, ugali should be served with greens, chicken, red meat, fish, sour milk and a variety of sauces. Eggs are also favoured but only when they are fried, not boiled. A healthy male adult can consume up to two kilograms of ugali per day but the figure may vary depending on the quality and appetite. It must, however, be remembered that excess consumption can be harmful to one's health.

Siku moja nilikutana na Tamasha njiani akipita kondeni ambako alipitisha mchana wote siku nenda siku rudi. Baada ya kujuliana hali naye nilijiambia kuwa nijaribu bahati yangu. Nikapiga moyo konde na kumwuliza kwa nini yeye hupenda kuyahudumia makonde yake kila siku. Tamasha aliniangalia kwa jicho pekuzi lililopenya hadi kwenye mtima wangu. Akaangua cheko la simanzi na kuniambia, “kijana utakapokua utajua kwamba ukupigao ndio ukufunzao.”

Tamasha kama alivyokuja kunieleza baadaye, alikuwa mwana aliyezalika na kulelewa vyema. Baada ya kukamilisha masomo yake ya chuo kikuu, aliajiriwa na kampuni mojawapo ya kuuza mafuta. Alikuwa mcha Mungu hadi siku moja, baada ya kuajiriwa kazi mjini alipopata ufa kwenye tabia yake. Mshahara aliopata ulidinda kabisa kuyakimu mahitaji yake mengi. Akawa kila mara hata kabla ya tarehe kumi na tano, yu waya. Baada ya kujikuna kichwa kwa muda, alipata suluhisho la hali yake ya uhitaji akaunyoosha mkono wake kuiambia kalamu yake itwae mali ya kampuni.

Miaka ya mwanzomwanzo mambo yalimwendea salama. Akatononoka, kipaji kikamnawiri. Hata hivyo serikali katika shughuli za kupigana na ufasadi iliurefusha mkono wake zaidi. Watu wa hulka na kimo cha Tamasha wakawa mashakani. Siku moja, baada ya Tamasha kufanikiwa si haba katika mradi mmoja wa “maendeleo” alikutana na mkwewe. Alitiwa mbaroni na hatimaye kuhukumiwa kifungo cha miaka saba.

Tamasha alitoka gereza baada ya miaka minne unusu. Alibahatika kuwa miongoni mwa waliofunguliwa na rais siku ya Jamhuri. Tangu siku hiyo Tamasha ameuvaa moyo mpya. Amepania kula jasho lake mwenyewe. Aliyanunua makonde yake mawili na kuanzisha shughuli za ukulima. Maisha ya anasa mjini aliyapa kisogo. Tamasha kila mara hakisita kuwahimiza watu kutokuwa wakunguni na vimelea. Ingawa hakuweza kumpata mke kwa sababu ya fikira za walimwengu kuwa, “Mwenye kavu sidhani kapoa”, yeye alitosheka na kidogo alichu nacho. Haachi kuwakumbusha adinasi hususan vijana maana ya methali “Bura yangu sibatili na rehani.”
